How to link to electronic books and journals in E-learning@Tees

Linking to electronic resources within a module gives students quick and direct access to learning resources without infringing copyright. By linking to specific journal articles and books through Discovery, you will ensure that the link is stable and provides students with information about the different access options available to them.

E-Resources Selecting the correct link
Starting from the Library Homepage: http://tees.ac.uk/sls enter the item details (Title of the book or of the Journal Article)

Choose the correct result and select More details

Select Permanent link.

Copy the link.
This is the correct link to use in an E-learning@Tees module. Students accessing the link should be directed to a landing page as below.

Adding links to E-learning@Tees
In the Blackboard module select build content, from the drop down options choose web link.

Use the name field to add a full reference to the book or article you are linking to. Copy and paste your selected web link to the URL field. In the text field add the following text:

Click on title to connect to electronic resource. Access requires IT username and password.
Ensure that the option to Open in New Window is selected as Yes. This will help with user authentication off-campus. Use the additional options to track usage and restrict access to the content as required.

Click submit and the link should be successfully added to the module. Double check the link to ensure that it is working properly. The link can be moved to different areas of the module as required and can be rolled-over with the rest of the module content for the new academic year.
